

PANEL 1 | FOURTH PERIOD FREEDOM

[Panel Art Pending]

 RIIIIING! ***

NARRATION: To most teenagers, the noon bell means lunch, gossip, and freedom from algebra. To Zoe Chen, it's just the opening bell of a global shift.

DIALOGUE:

MR. ABERNATHY: "And remember, students? Pythagoras's theorem isn't just for tests, it's for life!"

ZOE: (Whispering to herself) "Right. And my life happens to be stopping an international satellite hijacking. Carry the one... drop the firewall."

PANEL 2 | THE LOCKER ROOM BASE

[Panel Art Pending]

 WHOOSH-CLANG! ***

NARRATION: Skipping the cafeteria line for something a little more hazardous to her GPA.

DIALOGUE:

ZOE: "Sector four air-brakes engaged! Note to self: oil the hinges before first-period chemistry tomorrow!"

PANEL 3 | GLOBAL INTERVENTION

[Panel Art Pending]

 BEEP-BEEP-CLACK! *****

NARRATION: The juice box is innocent. The tactical deployment is lethal.

DIALOGUE:

ZOE: "Listen up, sophomores! Paris needs a localized EMP scrub, Tokyo's syndicate is bypassing mainframe three, and New York's sub-basement is flooding with rogue androids. Squads A, B, and C?move out before my mom texts asking if I ate my carrots!"